CASE STUDY INFORMATION

We would like your permission to write up and use your matter as a case study. Peninsula Community Legal Centre writes up some of its cases as case studies which we keep in a secure, internal database. We use these case studies to help argue for improvements to the law or to help people understand the law and how it affects people. Case studies are very effective in these ways.

PROTECTING YOUR PRIVACY

- We will take every precaution to protect your privacy.
- We will store your case study securely.
- Whenever we use case studies they are de-identified. This means we change the names and any other details that are necessary to make sure that you, the other party or any children involved cannot be identified.

CONTACTING YOU AGAIN

Your case study might be used when we:

- Make submissions to government, law reform bodies and parliament.
- Lobby politicians for increased funding.
- Prepare articles or publications or use the media to help the public understand the issues.
- Provide training to our own staff, to staff of other organisations or to the public.

CONTACTING YOU AGAIN

We would also like your permission to contact you again in the future for research, education, law reform or media purposes

THIS IS COMPLETELY VOLUNTARY

It is completely voluntary whether you agree for us to write up and use your case as a case study or to be contacted again in the future. This will not affect the legal assistance we give you in any way.

CONSENT FORM

If you agree to us writing up and using your case study, please complete the attached Consent Form and return it to us. You can request to see your case study before it is used.

OPTING OUT & ACCESSING INFORMATION

Contact us if:

- You no longer want your case to be used as a case study.
- You no longer wish to be contacted.
- You want to access and request correction of personal information in your case study.

CASE STUDY CONSENT

If you would like to authorise Peninsula Community Legal Centre to use your matter as a case study, please fill out your name below, tick whichever boxes apply and sign and date the bottom.

Name: _____

- I acknowledge that I have read and understand the Case Study Information brochure.
- I agree to my matter being used as a case study by Peninsula Community Legal Centre.
- I understand that my case study will be de-identified and may be used in verbal or written submissions to government, law reform bodies and parliament, when lobbying politicians and when preparing articles or working with the media to help the public understand the issues, or other similar purposes.
- I agree to being contacted in the future by Peninsula Community Legal Centre for research, education, law reform or media purposes.
- I agree to the Centre using my own description of my experience (below) as a case study.
